9,280 FIGHTING PLANES SOUGHT FOR U. S. ARMY

Assistant Secretary of War Hints at Roosevelt Action

"AIR SUPREMACY IS THREATENED"

Asserts U. S. Must Keep Up with Tremendous Pace Set by Others

(By Associated Press) BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, predicted today that President Roosevelt would ask congress for an arm air force of upwards of 9,280 fighting planes.

Johnson, a key figure in the President's restudy of national defense needs, gave the first official outline of parts of the administration's prospective armament program. He told the New England council that "our air supremacy is threatened" by Europe's advances.

Must Keep Pace

To meet the tremendous pace that the rest of the world is setting we must double, yes, treble and perhaps even quadruple our present air force with the best airplanes that can possibly be produced", Johnson said.

The army's present goal of 2,320 first line planes by mid-1940 he termed "far below our immediate needs."

Mass production of airplanes we must achieve in this country and we must do so immediately," Johnson continued.

A six-month supply of weapons and supplies for an additional million men is another outstanding administration objective, he indicated.

Without referring to President Roosevelt's assertion that national defense involved security of the entire western hemisphere, Johnson declared that "right now we are weak in the skies of battle to protect even our own shores."

BILL OF $440,000,000

War department spokesman toldum this year, however, that equipping the projected 1,000,000 man force with "essential" arm and supplies would cost $440,000,000.

Johnson, among outstanding military referring to the army alone and air needs, made it clear he was not the navy, expansion and improvement of aviation research facilities, particularly at Wright field.

Seven Fatal Claims Listed During Year

An annual report of the state industrial commission, compiled by Supt. Thomas P. Kearns of the division of safety and hygiene, shows that during the past year Columbia county workers filed 2,516 claims, seven of which were fatal.

Not All Joy, However

It was not all joy, however, that greeted signature of the Anglo-American treaty.

The Isolationist opposed putting the United States on a par with Britain's dominions and colonies in trade matters. The paper believed the United States should rank third with British home producers first and the colonies and dominions second.

The Daily Mail called the pact a "magnificent achievement" which "will inevitably draw the English-speaking peoples closer together."

The Laborite Daily Herald took the opportunity to crack at Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's government. The Herald praised President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull for continuing their "liberal"
trade policy," and added:

"For Britain it is the first big reversal of the policy of economic nationalism and imperialism, sofatefully introduced by Chamberlain and his colleagues in 1932."

THREE NATIONS AGREE ON PACT TO HELP TRADE

Tariff Concessions Are Made On More Than 2,250 Products

PROTESTS HEARD IN NEW ENGLAND

DISCRIMINATION CHARGED; OTHER QUARTERS LAUD BUSINESS TREATY

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The three greatest merchant nations—Great Britain, Canada and the United States—offered one another far-reaching tariff reductions today in the expressed hope of increasing foreign trade and thereby preserving world peace.

Historic commercial agreements, giving concessions on more than 2,250 products, were signed late yesterday in the mirrored East Room of the White House.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada and Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, joined Secretary of State Hull in predicting that better international understanding and cooperation would result.

New England Objects

But from some quarters came assertions that the agreements would place certain American producers in an unfair competitive position. Governors Aiken of Vermont and Barrows of Maine, both Republicans, declared that the tariff concessions discriminated against New England.

John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, said the industry's hopes for substantial relief from the Canadian tariff barriers against American coal had not been realized.

On the other hand, Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, called the documents "timely aid to international trade." Kenneth J. Campbell of the National Association of Credit Men asserted that commerce with the United Kingdom should increase both in volume and value.

GERMANY MUFFS ITS CHANCE

The Munich agreement, however offensive it was to many of those affected adversely, gave modern Germany a chance to live in a place in the sun. It had established proof of its political stability and national strength. It had won influence comparable to its greatest influence in the past.

It had not won respect, but many believed that having asserted its power so clearly, German leadership would be inclined toward moderation. Germany had much to gain by promoting a stabilized peace; in no other way could it realize the potential benefits of the influence it had carved out for itself.

But instead of bidding for respect, instead of showing capacity for constructive leadership, the German dictatorship deliberately has tried to prove that the worst-fears of those who predicted the results of appeasement would be more tragic than war were justified.

There is increasing evidence that Adolf Hitler and his advisers have no intention or capacity to make social use of their power. They have shown no interest in reconciliation. They have demonstrated by tragic acts of brutality that they are out of sympathy with the ethics which prompted other governments to seek a peaceful solution for the Sudeten problem.

They have shocked the sensibilities of civilized men with increasing impudence. They have alienated whatever sympathy existed for their policies. The penalty for their ghastly mistake inevitably will be destruction, either from within, or if they are not stopped by whatever residue of intelligence remains inside Germany, from without—if and when they finally exhaust the patience of a world which they seem to have designated as a victim of their schemes of destruction.

INCIDENTALLY

It's strange but true that Washington, fountain head of most things political these days, dried up as far as comments about the election were concerned. The President let it be known things had turned out about as expected, but aside from that enigmatic statement little was said, officially.

Unofficially, of course, the subject was wide open. Off-the-record conversations were hot and to the point. As reported by several Washington newspapermen, chiefly Ernest Lindley, they seemed to revolve around this point:

That the Democratic losses were in large part the result of the party's own factionalism, with the recession, cockeyed local political situations, farm discontent, and the weakness of certain candidates thrown in for good measure.

Out of three representative analyses reported by Lindley in The Washington Post three stressed party factionalism as a prime factor in the set-back. A staff correspondent for The Baltimore Evening Sun discovered that among Democratic officeholders in the capital there was almost as much joy as sorrow. A typical comment was to the effect that a spanking had been given the young leadership which currently has the President's ear.

It is, perhaps, slightly plainer now what the consequences of the split in the Democratic party threatens to be unless by some miracle it can be repaired before 1940.

PEACE IN QUOTATION MARKS

There's no way of knowing just how impressive the ceremonies which secured "peace" between Great Britain and Italy were. Probably everything possible was done to make it look like the real thing.

Perhaps it is. Things are more confused than ever in Europe right now. It probably isn't wholly accidental that the agreement stabilizing relationships between London and Rome has been clinched while Germany is indulging itself in a backward march toward slavery and cannibalism. Premier Mussolini still enjoys a reputation as the continent's shrewdest individual statesman; he may be repairing some fences which were kicked down when German troops appeared suddenly in the Brenner pass, with Austria in their possession.

The fact remains that the American press, relating the news of "peace" between Great Britain and Italy, must place the word in quotation marks. It is not a condition peculiar to relations between London and Rome either. Rather, the presence of quotation marks on either side of the word "peace" explains the present state of most of the world.

THRIFT

The government, which knows all and sees all, must have been aware in advance that the immediate result of coining a new nickel, aside from giving citizens something to talk about, would be a stirring prod to thrifit. The fact the new coins bear a likeness of Thomas Jefferson, a man of property, is symbolic.

Being new and shiny and pleasantly strange in the hum-drum monetary system, the nickels will become collectors' items. When the now decrepit buffalo nickel was but a yearling, it was corralled by the hundreds and even by the thousands. Fortunes were made in those days, or at least the foundations for fortunes were laid.

It is recalled that some of the buffalo nickels, instead of conforming to pattern, had a base under the buffalo which was higher than ordinary. These were especially prized and were taken out of circulation by youthful hoarders with eagerness. Reared on a steady diet of Horatio Alger and Ben Franklin, the youngs knew that if they saved their nickels some day they'd own a railroad, or something.

If adhesive tape manufacturers still put up their product in small, metal cylinders, the empty ones make ideal nickel repositories. But perhaps thrifit has passed out of style. It seems that way sometimes.

GERMANY LOSES BUSINESS

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The anti-Jewish drive is costing Germany orders for her goods from abroad and it appeared today that other economic difficulties might follow.

One exporter said all orders had been cancelled by customers in five leading countries around Germany.

Another asserted ruefully that the steep downward curve of business extended beyond the bottom of his sales graph.

The sharp decrease of foreign orders, manufacturers said, was the first effect they noted after the wrecking of Jewish shops, the decrees ordering these shops under Aryan proprietorship, and that $400,000 fine a consequence of the shooting by a Jewish boy of the Paris embassy secretary, Ernst von Rath, who was buried yesterday with Nazi honors.

New prohibitions include the newspaper Angriff said, one against tenant rights for Jews which would permit an Aryan wanting a Jew's home to have him evicted overnight. The paper said some 8,000 homes in Berlin would become available shortly for Aryans.

With new restrictions becoming known daily while Nazi newspapers continue attacks upon the United States and Britain for their expressions of resentment, industrialists have asked that German chambers of commerce abroad examine market possibilities more exhaustively and try to provide counter-stimulus.

Experts of the economics ministry, meanwhile, are studying how the wholesale "Aryanization" of Jewish capital may be handled without doing serious harm to the national interest.

The election, says Charles Michelson, the New Deal's No. 1 press agent, leaves the national situation pretty much as it was. And Charley pretty much as he was.

Italy is encouraging the use of mules in Ethiopia, which will only strengthen the stubbornness of the colony.

Streptococcic Sore Throat Described By Clendening

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
SEVERAL epidemics of streptococcic sore throat from different parts of the country have been reported to this column, and in response to several requests, I am writing a brief description of its nature and treatment.

Incidence: In an epidemic in Iowa that lasted from November 6 to December 29, last year, 195 cases were observed, of which 60 were in children and 135 in adults. Incubation period was brought about three days following the use of milk or cream containing the germ. The onset was sudden, with headache, backache, vomiting, diarrhea and sore throat.

The soreness of the throat was extreme. Swallowing was painful and difficult, and saliva drooled from the corner of the mouth.

The pulse was usually very rapid. At the end of about four days there was a general red rash all over the body except the head and face.

The whole illness lasted from three to five days.

A germ known as the hemolytic streptococcus was cultured from the throats. In almost all instances, milk from a single dairy was found responsible for the epidemic. The several times gone to sleep for the night with his glasses in his eyes, so little did he feel them.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening, and in response to several requests, I am writing a brief description of its nature and treatment.

DALHOVER PAYS FOR CRIME LIFE

Gangster of Al Brady Mob Goes Death In Electric Chair In Michigan City, Ind.

(By Associated Press)
MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Nov. 18.—The last gangster of the Al Brady mob of midwestern killers, once described as the worst in the country, died in a swift and efficient federal execution here today.

Little red-haired James Dalhover of Madison, 32-year-old gunman for the gang, was put in state prison's electric chair for the slaying of Paul V. Minneman, Logansport state policeman shot after the $2,000 Goodland State bank robbery May 25, 1937.

His death was as quick but more agonizing than those of his fellow mob men. Alfred Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr. of Indianapolis, shot by federal agents when they captured Dalhover in Bangor, Me., Oct. 12, 1937.

In nine brief minutes just after midnight, the condemned man was plucked from the death cell between two guards strapped in the chair and electrocuted.

That ended the career of a gang once termed by J. Edgar Hoover, Federal Bureau of Investigation, the "most vicious" in the United States. Brady and his henchmen boasted they would make John Dillinger look like a "boy." They were blamed for three killings.

A triangle-shaped black mask hid Dalhover's face as he was brought to a death chamber still as a morgue and walked, with stiff legs and heavy feet, the 13 steps to the chair. He wore an old brown shirt and black pants.

Fifteen persons watched. One was Loren Ayres of Delphi, once Minneman's partner on the state police force.

Less than an hour and a half before Dalhover had lost his last right for life. In a special night session of federal court at Hammond, Judge Thomas W. Glick of South Bend turned down a petition to get him a new hearing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, advocates putting the WPA and other relief units "lock, stock and barrel" under civil service to end charge of politics in relief.

Hopkins also told a group of 1,000 WPA supervisory employees he believed the federal government could find useful work for 2,000,000 persons for the next 20 to 30 years.

"There is housing to be built," he said, "to replace shacks unfit for human habitation, an enormous program of soil conservation and of human conservation, and, if national policy demands it, the production of armaments to protect this part of the world."

The administrator predicted that WPA workers eventually would be hired not on the basis of need but on the theory that a man able to do a day's work is entitled to a job.

Hopkins asserted it was "economically impossible" for all citizens to have enough to assure them of security in latter life. Ultimately, he said, all pensions to the aged would be given as a matter of right without any investigation to determine need.

In Toledo District

TOLEDO, Nov. 18—Industry's absorption of WPA workers in the Toledo district has been swifter than in any other district of the state, it was indicated in a report today by the Columbus WPA state headquarters to William E. Schmuhl, district director.

Analysis of the report which lists the Toledo district employment total at 36,611 as of Nov. 9, shows a reduction in WPA rolls of more than 3 per cent since Oct. 25. The remaining five Ohio districts all record declines of less than one per cent, except Akron, where the reduction is slightly more than two per cent.

POSTAL WORKER RETIRES DEC. 1

DEATHS

JOHN LOESCH

John Loesch, 48, of 335 West Pershing st., died at 2:45 a.m. today of complications, following a month's illness, at Salem City hospital where he was admitted for medical treatment yesterday afternoon.

tion to reenter postal work, was accepted and appointed as substitute clerk, in which capacity he served for two years and then he was assigned to the general delivery window and stamp division.

He has been at these windows ever since, where he greets his hundreds of friends in the business world and private life on their frequent trips to the postoffice.

When Mounts entered the postal service he succeeded William E. Triem as mailing clerk, Triem having been transferred to departmental service in Washington.

At that time the postoffice was in the old Opera house building. Frank P. Dunlap was the postmaster and Frank Y. Allen, assistant. These two men, with Mounts and Cussie Haledman as clerks, comprised the force.

Mounts remained in the mailing division for two years when Dr. F. T. Miles became postmaster. Mounts then was promoted to the money order and registry division.

In 1908 Postmaster W. S. Atchison named him assistant postmaster and he served in that capacity for 10 years.

Mounts, who resides at 463 E. Fourth st., was married March 1, 1899. His wife is the former Jennie L. Blazy, Salineville school teacher. He himself taught school in his earlier days.

He has one son, Kenneth, and three daughters, Mrs. Clifford Zimmerman, Mrs. Augusta M. Ible and Miss Margaret Mounts.

While he worked at the postoffice he witnessed the start of rural delivery service and the postal savings.

But even the tedious postoffice work didn't keep Mounts from other activities. An active worker in the First Christian church, and treasurer for the last 15 years, he also is a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge. He belongs to both Amity Lodge and Goodwill encampment.

During the three years he was out of the postal service, he acted as secretary to the chamber of commerce.

A native of Homeworth, he is the son of Daniel and Mary J. Mounts.

Although it's been a long time—these many years that he has worked—George feels that he is still capable of working and intends to do so, after possibly, a short rest.

He thinks he'll re-enter the insurance business.

THREE NATIONS AGREE ON PACT

Tariff Concessions Are Made On More Than 2,250 Products

other pork products, corn and cotton were "bound," that is, guaranteed to remain at the present price.

The removal of the six-cents-a-bushel duty on American wheat, officials said, should prove a boon to American railroads, ports and shipping. Canadian wheat, which formerly had to move from a Canadian port in order to enjoy preferential treatment, now can go out through American ports.

Experts of the agriculture department said that in general the treaties should broaden the market for American farm products, but would not solve the problem of wheat and cotton surpluses.

The United Kingdom gave the United States concessions on a variety of manufactured products, including office and electrical machinery and appliances, automobiles, chemicals and silk stockings.

Concessions On Textiles

In return the United States gave Britain substantial concessions averaging 25 per cent reductions on textiles, whether of cotton, flax, hemp, jute or wool. The duty on whisky, which is Britain's largest export to the United States, was "bound" at $2.50 a gallon. Britain also got concessions on leather and leather manufactures and pottery.

In some cases concessions made by or to the United States were balanced by concessions in the agreement with Canada. This was the reason for signing both agreements at the same time.

Canada made her major tariff cuts on American fruits and vegetables, fish, paper, wood, chemicals, heavy iron and steel products, machinery, aircraft and engines, and the textiles. She also eliminated the three per cent special import tax hitherto imposed on all items mentioned in the agreement.

United States concessions to Canada centered in live cattle, hogs and pork products, cheese, eggs, grains, other than wheat, grain by-products, maple sugar, potatoes, fish, Acetic acid, brick, nickel, aluminum, zinc, cadmium, cast-iron products, paper and silver-fox furs.

BARKER PICKS MICHIGAN AND IRISH TO WIN

Favors Harvard, Duke and Wisconsin in Other Top-Notch Tiffs

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Holding in abeyance a dictionary amendment proposing to define football as a "game of chance," this guesser however, misguided, hazards the following convictions as to this week's program:

Northwestern-Notre Dame: The temptation is strong to select this as the spot that marks Notre Dame's downfall. Northwestern can match the Irish in man-power, something no other rival has done, and has a habit of playing its best against South Bend outfits. But that's just whistling in the dark. Waiving immunity, Notre Dame.

Yale-Harvard: Dick Harlow's Harvard teams develop steadily and smoothly, week by week, slowly mastering the intricacies of the Harlow hocus-pocus. It's never safe to hold Yale lightly in an objective game but this ballot goes to Harvard.

Duke - North Carolina State: Can't see how Duke can lose.

Rice-Texas Christian: Unpredictable Rice may give the unbeaten Horned Frogs some trouble but Christian should win safely.

California-Stanford: California shouldn't find this too tough to hurdle.

Wisconsin-Minnesota: Harry Shuldrake's Badgers must have caught fire. Judging by successive victories over Northwestern and U. C. L. A. with the Big Ten title in the bag for the winner, this should be one of the day's outstanding fights. One faltering vote for Wisconsin.

Pitt-Penn State: The Nittany Lions are fast but light. Pitt is fast and heavy. If Goldberg returns it will probably be a rout but with or without Goldberg, Pitt.

Princeton-Army: Hard to figure but Army gets the nod on the theory that the Tigers hit their peak last week.

Ohio State-Michigan: Either can figure in the Big Ten title if Wisconsin and Minnesota. Michigan has been the more consistent and rates an edge on that basis alone.

Iowa State-Oklahoma: The Cyclones are surprisingly tough but seem to lack undefeated and untied Oklahoma's all-around class. Oklahoma.

Auburn-Georgia: The Plainsmen seem finally to have mustered an attack Auburn.

Fordham-South Carolina: The Southerners have come far since last season but the Rams look too strong Fordham.

Columbia-Syracuse: No harder to pick. Out of the hat, Syracuse.

Maryland-Georgetown: George Washington's clean slate looks safe.

Manhattan-West Virginia: The day says Manhattan.

Lafayette-Manhattan: Lafayette.

Purdue-Indiana: The favorite sedom wins this one but Purdue must be the choice.

Chicago-Illinois: Illinois.

Iowa-Nebraska: Both well-beaten and not much to choose. Nebraska.

Michigan State-Temple: Johnny Pingel ought to provide the winning margin for Michigan State.

Detroit-Tulsa: Even-Stephen but take Detroit.

Georgia Tech-Florida: Tech hardly.

Baylor-Southern Methodist: Ouch from the bottom of an exceedingly deep hole, Southern Methodist.

Oregon-Washington: Close enough Washington.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Villanova over Boston University; Tulane over Swemane; Utah over Wyoming; Brigham Young over Colorado State; Idaho over Utah State.

CORBETT FACES FRED APOSTOLI

Meet in Bout Tonight To Decide Middleweight Championship

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Having finished their training without a single fracture, Freddie Apostoli and Young Corbett clash at Madison Square Garden tonight for the "world middleweight championship" as it is understood by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Prospects are that the two Californians will settle their argument in semi-privacy, with fewer than 10,000 scattered about the big arena. The fight has failed to catch on partly because the house has been scaled at championship prices and many fans do not think it is a bona fide championship fight.

The title for which Apostoli and Corbett fight is an ephemeral something, created by the state boxing commission. The other 160-pound title is held by Solly Krieger of Brooklyn, by virtue of his recent win over Al Hostak in Seattle.

HURLING CORPS OF 18 MAY HOLD TALENT FOR A'S

Several Youngsters Show Promise; Rated On 1938 Records

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—A man would have to have the daring of a race-track plunger, and the purse of a multimillionaire and the luck of the Irish to dare risk any wager on the chances of the Philadelphia Athletics to win the American League pennant in 1939 but let's take a quick look through the expert microscope at the outfit that carries the hopes of Connie Mack, oldest and one of the most able of major league pilots.

Not since 1931, when his outfit won the pennant with 107 victories has Mack brought home a flag winner. His record now stands at nine winners and the aging Shibe Park tactician is determined to win up to 10 before he retires.

First, scan the men that toss 'em up to the opposition—the pitching staff. Mack has an abundance of pitchers, no fewer than 18, easily his largest gathering in years. Most of his squad is young, with fair if not good records. Some have little more than a burning desire to make good.

George Caster, Lynn Nelson, Dave and Edgar Smith, Bud Thomas and Lee Ross are the best of last year's lot.

Three newcomers, each of whom on his minor league record—looks good enough to stick, are headed Shibe Park way for their big league baptism. Leon Kyle, a 19-game winner with Pensacola of the Southeastern League, Robert Joyce, righthander from the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league and Sam Page from Spartanburg in the South Atlantic league make up the trio.

Next, a study of the weakest part of the whole Athletic set-up—the infield lineup for next season. The hottest rumor to tickle the ears of Shibe Park fans is that Rudy York, slugging Indian of the Detroit Tigers might arrive via the trade route to bolster the infield. The hopeful have it that either one of the A's homer-hitting outfielders, Bob Johnson or Wally Moses, and an infielder, will figure in the trade.

If York arrives, the infield would present this picture: York at first; a free-for-all second base; Bill Lillard, obtained for a big chunk of cash, at shortstop; while at third would be a three-cornered battle among Bill Nagel, Dario Lodigiani and Joe Gantzenbein. Nagel and Gantzenbein were obtained via the draft.

Sam Chapman, former all-American football man from the Coast, Lou Finney, utility man and either Moses or Johnson will make up the outfield corps.

Summed up: if Mack can tighten up his infield, produce a pair of consistent winning pitchers and add a little more batting punch, he might have a team with an outside chance of crashing the first division.

A flock of talents bows out of the collegiate grid picture this weekend on the Ohio fields.

Ohio State loses 10 seniors; Wooster's Ohio conference champs lost five; Denison's 1937 state champs lose 10; Baldwin Wallace 8, Ohio university 12, and Mount Union six, with other precincts not reported.

With Ohio State winding up its 50th year of football Saturday with about 70,000 fans on hand, perhaps these facts on the Buck stadium would be pertinent: cost $1,341,000; permanent seats 62,110; temporary capacity 72,000; lower deck seats 41,000, upper deck 21,000, with 3,344 box seats; closest seats 72 feet from sidelines, farthest 231 feet; circumference one-third mile (seems like two miles when walking's crowded); ground area 10 acres, length 574 feet, width 597 feet; height 98 feet three inches; material concrete and steel; 81 entrances, with 12 ramps feeding 112 crowds; 700 ushers handle capacity crowd; 87 concrete and steel arches 13 feet wide and 36 feet high; four towers, one on each side of main entrance and one at each end of open end of huge horseshoe 109 feet high and 36 feet square; heated press box about 100 feet long, with three rows of seats; radio booths at each end, with photographers' booths on top; and the scribes get hot chocolate and beef sandwiches at the half while you sit outside and freeze.

Meanwhile, the Wisconsin eleven, at full strength with the return of Lynn Hovland at guard, was ready to shoot the works in its title bid against Minnesota while the Gophers fretted over the speed they expected to encounter at Madison. Pass defense was the principal item on yesterday's Gopher workout.

The commission is composed of Dewey Montgomery, chairman, William J. Pfaff and Philip A. Rhodes.

The Julians asked permission to sponsor a show in order to secure funds to purchase new equipment for their training quarters in the Memorial building. They plan to use several champions from the Allegheny Mountain association and the Pittsburgh Diamond Belt tournament.

Four Salem boys will appear in the Julians show. Two of the local lads will be Don West and Joe Janovec while the other two will be selected during workouts next week.

The girls squad of 18 includes three veterans from last season's team—Martha Wolf, Margaret Beck and Marjorie Beck. New additions to the girls team include three girls who transferred from other schools. They are Thelma Young, who formerly played with Berlin Center; Mary Stanley, a Beloit player last year, and Betty Allen, who gained basketball experience at Beaver Center, Pa.

E. L. Wagstaff is coach of the girls team.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—You can win yourself plentyough-day around this town betting when Notre Dame played its first football game in New York.... It was against Rutgers in '21.... And this corner was taken for a piece of change against that one (to be probably frank).... The Irish won only 40-0.... Now that Jimmy Adamic is off the active list, the good Doc Karns is looking for another "white hope" heavy.... Got one up your sleeve?.... Any team out to skin the Yankees might take a gander at Heber (Rock) Stroud, a third-base man who showed plenty of class at South Carolina.... This department hears the Boston Red Sox have had an eye or two on him.

It is generally known that Frankie Frisch was once turned down for the army because of a "weak heart".... And all he's done since then is play 20 years of major league ball....

Southwestern Louisiana institute, where Johnny Cain, the old "Bama boy, has a real small-college ball club, is booming

Glyn Abel, a halfback from Missouri, and Bill Stevenson, a guard, as the best-looking footballers they've seen since Chris Cagle was taking things apart down thataway before moving up to Army.... Pitt goes for inter-collegiate baseball for the first time next spring.... And Edgar Jones, a football halfback from Scranton, is rated as major league pitching material.... "Nuff said."

Ever since Gene Sarazen wrote that golf piece saying golf pros lose money around the circuit, the folks in the game are wondering what Ralph Guldahl, Denny Shute and Johnny Revolta will do to build those new Florida homes.... Schoolboy stuff from here and there: Bob (Ding) Barry, Burlingame (Wis.) halfback, only scored 130 points in six games.... Got

20 touchdowns and ten extra points

.... And twice knocked off six touchdowns in a game, most of 'em for 50 yards or better.... Pitt and Temple may have to fight each other to land Marty Vardaro from Medeville (Pa.) High.... Who broke the northwest Penn scoring record with 110 points.... Ford ham Jimmy Crowley came back from his seasonal ivory hunting trip in Pennsylvania with three good looking high school backs.... Es-specially Joe Cunningham from Wilkes-Barre, who can pass, kick or run.... This corner still maintains those Pennsylvania coal regions produce the best football material in the country.

Sam Chapman, former all-

America football man from the Coast, Lou Finney, utility man and either Moses or Johnson will make up the outfit field corps.

Summed up: if Mack can tighten up his infield, produce a pair of consistent winning pitchers and add a little more batting punch, he might have a team with an outside chance of crashing the first division.

In the meantime the returned descending on the city today, going grads and other fans start-filling hotel and fraternity and fraternity houses. A bonfire pep meeting is slated on the campus tonight, followed by dances and parties everywhere.

The 120-piece Ohio State band has been doubled for the game.

The contest is the headliner of a seven-game Saturday program involving Ohio teams, the No. 2 tilt being the Buckeye conference fray between Ohio University and Marshall college at Athens. A share of the crown hinges on that one, too.

Other Saturday contests are: Case

at Oberlin, John Carroll at Akron,

Baldwin-Wallace at Xaver, Wooster at Washington and Jefferson, and Youngstown at Detroit Tech.

Three games originally scheduled are: Heidelberg at Denison, Ohio

for Saturday but moved up to today

Wesleyan at Rollins (Fla.) and Mount Union at Muskingum (night).

BOWLING RESULTS

A close race for first place in the Commercial league remained unchanged at the Grate Recreation alleys last night as the leading Merit Shoes won two out of three games from Grate Recreation and the second-place Salem Label Co. took two out of three from the Salem Polo Club.

The Label Co. trails Merits by one game.

Smith's Creamery took over sole possession of third place by posting three wins over Grate's West End Service Station. The Crescent Machine team moved out of the cellar on the strength of three wins by forfeit from Berg Bretzels.

In the only other Commercial league match, the Lettonia Super Service won two out of three games from the Washington Odd Fellows. The Salem News-Ohio Bell match was postponed.

Ice Follies Star

Ice Show Hailed As Best To Appear In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—"It's easily the greatest ice show ever to appear in Cleveland."

That in short was the consensus of spectators and reviewers alike today as the world premiere appearance of the Ice Follies of 1939 moved toward the final days of its performance in Cleveland's million dollar arena. The Follies will conclude with both matinee and evening performances Sunday.

Topping the magnificent performance of Sonja Henie's show here last year, the 1937 Gay Blades, and its own previous follies which opened the local ice palace last year, the 1939 Ice Follies is by far the most colorful, most spectacular and talented of all carnivals on steel blades exhibited here.

Boasting of such names as Evelyn Chandler, Bess Erhardt, Roy Shipstad, Osborne Colson, Bruce Mapes, and Harris Legg, this new Follies leads the field in sensational figure skating. Best of all, expert showmanship has gone into this production.

Miss Erhardt, Miss Chandler, Roy Shipstad and Mr. Mapes, individually and collectively, demonstrate more figure-tricks on ice than any show ever to perform here.

The "Swing Dance on Ice" and the "Indian Dance" as presented at the Arena were filmed by the M-G-M studios for the movie soon to appear starring Joan Crawford.

Columbiana Seniors To Play Last Game

COLUMBIANA, Nov. 18.—Six Columbiana High school Seniors will be playing their last scholastic football game Saturday when the Red and White tackles Lisbon at the county seat.

They are: Tackles Uzelton, Thomas and Donbar; End Stephen, Center Moser, and Halfback Irons.

Uzelton, the heaviest man on the squad, played the best game of his career against East Palestine last week, while Thomas and Irons were also good on defense.

Coach Al Beach will again bank on his passing combination of Dewalt and Burkle to score against

Lisbon, but the dope favors Columbiana to remain in the Tr-

County league cellar as they have yet to win a league game.

Mothers of the local grididers are planning a turkey dinner for the team members and parents Tuesday evening at Firestone park pavil-

No. 2. About 100 are expected to attend.

MEDICAL SNUFF TO HEAL ULCERS

New Treatment of Stomach Ailment Called Successful

BY STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

OKLAOMA CITY, Nov. 18.—A whiff of medicinal "snuff" was reported today as the newest and most successful treatment of stomach ulcers, one of the commonest complaints of fast-living civilized man.

The "snuff" treatment, announced to the Southern Medical Association by Dr. M. Hill Metz and Dr. Robert W. Lackay of Baylor University, Dallas, has been found effective in 55 out of 60 cases on which it was tried.

A finely-ground powder made from the rear half of the pituitary glands of animals is the special snuff used, they said. It is inhaled into the nose. The pituitary gland, which is divided into fore and aft parts, is located just at the base of the brain and is the master gland of the body, controlling the hormone secretions of all the other ductless glands.

The exact cause of peptic ulcers treated with the pituitary powder is not fully known, the Texas physicians said. However, medical scientists believe they are caused by an excessive secretion of digestive juices.

Only two-thirds of a grain of the powerful glandular extract taken four times a day by snuffing it into the nose was sufficient to bring relief to a patient within two to four days, they said. Generally within 18 days he was found to be entirely free of symptoms of the disorder.

As far as can be determined the glandular preparation does its curative work by improving the tone and activity of the stomach and duodenum, the first part of the small intestine. Thus it acts as a "booster" in digestion to relieve the stomach of an excessive amount of work, enabling it to heal itself.

"Often a Bridesmaid"

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER I

A car stopped outside. Aunt Bet heard the talk, and the laughter. The crunching of feet on the gravel walk.

She switched on the lamp at her bedside, and strained toward the small enameled clock, trying to focus without her glasses. It looked like half past four, but she couldn't be sure.

Half past four. What do young people find to do at such an hour? Not that she worried. Aunt Bet was used to young people and their ways, she merely wondered.

She recognized her niece Margaret's voice and Sue Decker's shrill, half hysterical giggle, and made a little face as she turned off the light, and lay back on her pillow. That girl! Everything in the world, more suitors than you could shake a stick at, and still breaking her silly neck to get Margaret's beau!

He was out there now, with Margaret, and that nice Joe Atwell. As far as Aunt Bet was concerned, Sue could have the Raleigh boy. Margaret would do far better with Joe, or any of a half dozen others.

They were coming in now. She could hear the faint squeak of the front door, and the giggling as they tiptoed through the hall, on their way to the kitchen. Always giggling. She tried to think back to when she was nineteen, but she couldn't remember the giggling and the silly nothings that amused her nieces so much. Still, they were good girls. Especially Margaret. And Margaret would clean up the mess in the kitchen later so that the maid wouldn't have it to do in the morning.

Morning. Aunt Bet sighed and closed her eyes. It was practically morning now. She'd be glad when all this Senior week festivity was over, but in two or three years she'd have to go through it all again with the younger sisters, Natalie and Barbara.

For that matter, Natalie and Barbara were pretty well into it right now with Margaret. Margaret handed down the suitors she could not use, making young ladies of them, especially the baby, Babs, before their time.

And with all the boys to choose from, Margaret had to pick out the Raleigh boy. Not that she was a snob. Bet thought with pride in her own democracy but, when a girl has half the eligible men in a community at her feet, is there any sense in her picking a nobody who just happens to be good looking and plays football?

Aunt Bet sighed and turned over. It was a question that had no answer.

Downstairs, in the white, spotless kitchen, Margaret and the young man in question were busily cooking ham and eggs, while Sue and Joe balanced on the edge of the sink and shouted and giggled over the single highball they were concocting with two straws.

"Good liquor," Joe said judiciously. "But not enough of it," Sue said.

"It's all you're going to get. Hey, don't drink so fast! ... Hey stop! Aw, Maggie, look, she's getting it all!"

Margaret smiled, without turning, went on basting the eggs. "Can't help it. That's all there is."

"Oh, Maggie, don't be stingy! You know there's a new case!"

"And I said I wouldn't touch it. Daddy doesn't mind how much is gone out of the decanter, but he'd have a fit if we opened a case. Anyway, you've had enough. Too much. You're getting thick!"

"I'm not drunk! I'm not, I'm not!"

"Too bad she drinks," Joe said. "She's a nice girl otherwise. Her parents are nice people, her friends are nice, especially Joe Atwell and Maggie Wickham."

"I'm not drunk. Listen. I can prove it. I can say—"

Ken Raleigh, who'd been making toast in the oven, turned around and looked with distaste at the noisy, giggling girl kicking slim, chiffon-clad legs on the kitchen sink.

"Oh, pipe down, Sue."

Margaret smiled and, without turning, went on basting the eggs.

Instantly Sue slipped from her perch on the sink, went and stood quietly by the back door.

Margaret frowned. Now Ken had done it again. Hurt Sue's feelings. Why couldn't he see she was showing off just for him and give her a break? But no, he had to go out of his way to be nasty.

"Come on," she called, rattling the coffee pot, making a lot of noise to cover the awkward moment. "Come on—everything's ready. Joe, you bring the cups, and Sue, there's some jam in the icebox. Get the hot plates, Ken."

Sue came, but grudgingly. She couldn't hide the hurt in her dark, mobile face. Her scarlet mouth drooped, she watched Ken broodingly, out of dark, brilliant eyes.

Ken watched Margaret. He watched every movement of her quick, capable hands, every turn of her fair, lovely head.

She was, he thought for the thousandth time, the prettiest girl he'd ever seen. She was more than pretty—there was something serene and satisfying about her. Sue was probably just as pretty, in her own way. Lots of fellows thought she was prettier, but he couldn't see it. Too sloppy, for one thing, and too fidgety. Rummpling up her hair, making faces, giggling at the top of her lungs. Why couldn't she be quiet like Margaret?

Margaret had hidden in the rumble with him and she didn't look windblown. She'd broiled ham and fried eggs and she looked as though she'd just jumped out of a bandbox. He loved the way her pale, blond hair sprang back from her broad, white brow. He loved the way the quick color came and went in her cheeks. He loved her delicate slimness, her clear blue eyes. Thanks for the snack. See you tomorrow!"

Sue wailed. "Oh, dear—and there is nothing left but the ball—"

"And commencement!" Joe said. "Commencement!" Sue snorted. "Yeh, diplomas and speeches. I can hardly wait."

"Here's your coat. Come again some time. Miss Decker," Ken said, wrapping it over her shoulders and steering her toward the door.

"Oh, all right—if you insist, meanie! Goodbye, Maggie, honey. Thanks for the snack. See you tomorrow!"

Thanks for the snack. See you tomorrow!"

Sue wailed. "Oh, dear—and there is nothing left but the ball—"

"And commencement!" Joe said. "Commencement!" Sue snorted. "Yeh, diplomas and speeches. I can hardly wait."

"Here's your coat. Come again some time. Miss Decker," Ken said, wrapping it over her shoulders and steering her toward the door.

"Oh, all right—if you insist, meanie! Goodbye, Maggie, honey. Thanks for the snack. See you tomorrow!"

She was, he thought for the thousandth time, the prettiest girl he'd ever seen. She was more than pretty—there was something serene and satisfying about her. Sue was probably just as pretty, in her own way. Lots of fellows thought she was prettier, but he couldn't see it. Too sloppy, for one thing, and too fidgety. Rummpling up her hair, making faces, giggling at the top of her lungs. Why couldn't she be quiet like Margaret?

Margaret had hidden in the rumble with him and she didn't look windblown. She'd broiled ham and fried eggs and she looked as though she'd just jumped out of a bandbox. He loved the way her pale, blond hair sprang back from her broad, white brow. He loved the way the quick color came and went in her cheeks. He loved her delicate slimness, her clear blue eyes. Thanks for the snack. See you tomorrow!"
